Lilian Uwintwali is the founder and CEO of Mahwi Tech, an award-winning agritech firm with a mission to digitize agriculture in Africa that currently links more than 20,000 smallholder farmers in Rwanda to markets.

Mahwi Tech has developed and deployed the MLIMA Platform to address demand and supply chain gaps in agriculture using digital technologies and serving smallholder farmers, with a strong emphasis on women.

Using MLIMA Platform, smallholder farmers and farming cooperatives have access to a cooperative management system that digitizes all farmers operations and transactions as well as an online marketplace where cooperatives are able to publish and sell their yields online on a larger exposed market and attract buyers who offer competitive prices for their commodities.
